ICONIC VENUE PARTIES ON

HACKNEY Council is set to sign a 15-year lease with Village Underground, in Shoreditch, protecting the future of one of London's most renowned venues.

Since its launch in 2006, Village Underground has forged a reputation as one of the best live music venues in the capital.

The Council has agreed terms for a 15-year extension to the venue's lease, which will be signed in the coming days.

Known for the iconic reconditioned tube trains perched on its roof, the former warehouse provides studio space for 30 artists and start-up businesses, and hosts a diverse programme of arts, including live music, club nights, exhibitions, theatre and the visual arts.

Mayor of Hackney, Philip Glanville, said: "Signing a new lease will be fantastic news for the future of Village Underground and the character of Shoreditch, one of the borough's most vibrant and culturally rich destinations.

"We are sending out a strong message about the value of our arts and music venues for the community and local economy."

Auro Foxcroft, founder of Village Underground and a key partner of the Music Venue Trust (MVT), said: "We're thrilled to have agreed a secure future for Village Underground. It shows that Hackney truly understands and values the importance of culture and grassroots venues.

"It's also very timely. There has been so much discussion over the plight of clubs and music venues. The decline has stopped, the tide is turning."

The capital's Night Czar, Amy Lamé, added: "Today's announcement is a fantastic example of how venues and councils can work together. As London's Night Czar and the new Chair of the London Music Board, I'm deeply committed to protecting live music venues across the capital. Over the past few years we've lost too many of these amazing venues, so it's vital that we act now to protect the ones we have and to encourage new places to open.

"This is fantastic news, and I would urge boroughs around the capital to take steps to protect venues in their communities."

The Council has also taken steps to protect other Hackney venues including The Chesham Arms, Passing Clouds and The Acorn pub by making them an Asset of Community Value.

New homes and jobs for Tesco site

Tesco has been looking for a buyer that would allow the supermarket chain to remain in Morning Lane, but in a smaller store

THE Council has announced plans to buy the Tesco site in Morning Lane, to provide workspace, offices, shops, a new superstore and homes.

The proposed development could create 270,000 sq ft of retail and commercial space – sufficient for over 1,500 new jobs – and 245,000 sq ft of new homes, including a minimum of at least 20 per cent affordable homes.

Tesco has been looking to find a buyer for the land that would allow the chain to remain in Morning Lane, but in a smaller store.

The project would effectively be cost neutral, as the investment would be made back from rent and other payments covered by the future development.

The purchase would have no impact on the Council's budget or

“Our business started in Hackney; we are proud of our connection to the area”

Council Tax rates, as it is able to borrow money to fund investment-led projects which eventually make a profit, like this one.

The Council will work with Hackney Walk retail hub to develop the land, delivering a scheme to secure Hackney Central's thriving town centre with a mixture of work and office space, shops, light industry, and housing, with a core focus on the fashion industry.

Mayor of Hackney, Philip Glanville, said: “This is a once in a generation opportunity. It's a key development site, and will be quickly snapped up by a housing developer if we decide not to go ahead, and we will lose control over what happens to this large plot of land in the middle of Hackney Central.

“This is a significant investment, but the benefits are just as significant: space for 1,500 jobs, genuinely affordable workspace, at least 50 per cent of the retail jobs prioritised for residents, and onsite affordable homes.”

Contracts are set to be finalised, with a view to completing the transaction in February. The planning application is expected to take between 18 months and two years. It is intended that Tesco will remain in its existing store for the next three to four years, until the new store is ready to open.

Steve Rigby, Chief Property Officer at Tesco, said: “Our business started in Hackney and we are proud of our connection to the area, so we are delighted to be working with the Council on this project. We have looked at a number of proposals and held discussions with several parties, but Hackney Council's proposal aligns best with our aims of releasing value from our property portfolio, while enabling regeneration and enhancing the experience for customers.”

The Hackney half takes runners past many famous landmarks; or just enjoy the day as a spectator

Keep on running

THE Hackney half marathon is set to relaunch this spring, offering a bigger and better race day experience for runners, spectators and residents.

Entries are now open for this year's event, which takes place on 30 April.

Organisers Virgin Sport, which is part of the Virgin Group, will build upon the success of previous Run Hackney events to create a new festival of sport.

Known as

“Residents have really taken the Hackney half marathon to their hearts”

Virgin Sport Hackney, it will provide something for everyone, including professional athletes, new runners and local families.

As well as the 13.1 mile half marathon course past Hackney's most famous landmarks, there will be a new Chase Your Mate 5.5k closed race event, adding a fun, competitive element to the day, plus a free fitness and yoga boot camp on Hackney Marshes.

In addition, the Schools' Challenge (pictured left) will return, offering local children the chance to be part of the excitement.

To ensure as many local people can take part as possible, the Council has secured special offers and free tickets for residents.

Hackney runners can access the early-bird entry offer for an extended period, until 28 February. There are also 1,000 free places available for the Chase Your Mate event; a 50 per cent concession entry rate for those in receipt of benefits, or in full time education; and 250 free places for the half marathon. Details of how to apply for all of these free tickets will be released soon.

Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Health, Social Care and Devolution, said: “Since we first launched the annual half marathon in Hackney four years ago, residents have really taken it to their hearts. I've heard lots of stories of people who've been inspired to start running as a result of seeing all of the runners take to the streets for the Hackney half; it's an atmosphere like no other.”

News in brief

Station set for £25m refurb

WORK is underway on a £25million scheme to transform Hackney Wick Overground station and deliver major improvements for residents and businesses in the area. A new entrance and ticket hall at ground-floor level will feature coloured concrete walls and illuminated glass, and new stairs and two new lifts will improve access to the revamped station.

Network Rail is delivering the project, on behalf of the London Legacy Development Corporation. It will create a new subway running north to south beneath the existing railway line, replacing a footbridge and opening up new pedestrian and cycle links from Wallis Road through to White Post Lane.

Work is due to be completed by January 2018.

Hackney and Tower Hamlets councils have both contributed £1million towards the refurbishment, which is expected to generate new jobs, investment and affordable housing.

Val Shawcross, Deputy Mayor for Transport, said:

“This much-needed upgrade will play a vital role in the transformation of this area of East London. New pedestrian and cycle links will be a major boost to the area, improving accessibility and journeys for thousands of passengers travelling to and from Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park.”

Cllr Guy Nicholson, Cabinet Member for Planning, Business and Investment, added: “This is a timely investment into an important public transport link for residents and the local business community.”

A step on the careers ladder

RESIDENTS looking to boost their job prospects are being encouraged to attend the Hackney Careers Fair. Hosted by Higgins Construction, the Council and View Training, it will give job seekers a chance to meet representatives from organisations in the construction, administration, health and social care, and retail sectors. The fair will take place on 1 February, from 1pm to 4pm, at Hackney Community College, Falkirk Street, N1 6HQ. # Green light for 400 homes

An artist's impression of what the new homes, built on the Nightingale Estate in Clapton, will look like

HUNDREDS of modern, high-quality new homes will transform derelict land on a Clapton housing estate after the Council's ambitious £200million regeneration plans were approved.

Designs for the 400 homes at the two-hectare site on Nightingale Estate – which followed years of consultation with residents – were agreed by the Council's Planning Committee on 11 January.

The homes for social rent, shared ownership and outright sale are part of the Council's estate regeneration programme, which will see more than 3,000 homes built at sites across the borough.

The new development will complete the regeneration of the Nightingale Estate, joining more than 300 affordable homes already built by award-winning housing association Southern Housing Trust and nearly 400 more refurbished Council homes.

“This fantastic development is the result of years of close work with residents”

Other highlights include improvements to public spaces across the estate, with new trees, lighting and playgrounds, as well as a community centre, café and retail space.

Mayor of Hackney, Philip Glanville, said: “This fantastic development, with its high-quality design, is the result of years of close work with residents, and will bring hundreds of desperately needed new homes for Hackney.

“I'm proud that we are building thousands of new homes ourselves through our Estate Regeneration Programme, with more than half for social rent or shared ownership. We can now get to work on delivering more homes for residents struggling to find an affordable place to rent or buy.”

Construction will start later this year on the new development, part of the long-term regeneration of the estate which has seen five Council tower blocks demolished to make way for new homes. In total, the regeneration of the estate will have delivered more than 750 new properties when complete.

The Council's Estate

Regeneration Programme – one of the largest in London – will see thousands of modern, high-quality homes built to replace ageing homes that are uneconomical to repair.

More than half will be for Council social rent and shared ownership, paid for by some homes for outright sale in the absence of any government funding.

Hackney will also be the first borough to see 500 new homes built at a London Living Rent, based on a third of average local earnings to help households facing rent hikes in the private sector.

News in brief

New Nobu hotel now recruiting

WORLD famous hotel chain Nobu has joined forces with the Council to give residents the opportunity to work in its new Shoreditch hotel, set to open this spring.

Known for its high-end hotels and restaurants around the world, Nobu is searching for local staff to join the team at its first European hotel, in Willow Street, which will boast 150 rooms and a 240-seat restaurant.

There are a range of opportunities on offer, from working back and front of house, to preparing and serving food and drink, housekeeping, security and engineering. The jobs are open to residents who would like to start a career in hospitality, as well as to those who have experience in the industry. Nobu offers a range of benefits, including training, staff discounts and a competitive salary.

There will be an open day on 4 February, from 10am to 4pm, at the Opportunity Hub, 137-139 Bowling Green Walk, N1 6EL. Residents need to take a copy of their CV and proof of eligibility to work in the UK.

The new Nobu hotel in Shoreditch will have 150 rooms

Call to reconsider rent hikes

THE Council is calling on Network Rail to reconsider severe rent hikes, which could force many of the borough's independent traders out of business.

Last year, the public body began significantly increasing rents in its railway arches as tenancy agreements came to an end. The Council understands some businesses were told at short notice that their new rent would more than double. Some have already closed as a result.

Mayor of Hackney, Philip Glanville, and the Council's Cabinet Member for Planning, Business and Investment, Guy Nicholson, last year wrote to Network Rail Chairman, Sir Peter Hendy, raising their concerns. They requested a meeting with him to discuss a more collaborative approach to setting new rents.

Cllr Nicholson said: “For many of the independent traders and businesses that have made the borough's railway arches the vibrant and desirable spaces they are today, the rent rise is simply unaffordable.”

Human rights campaigner, Peter Tatchell (centre), at Pride

THIS year marks the 50th anniversary of the partial decriminalisation of male homosexuality in England and Wales.

The world has come a long way since then but, as events like the Orlando nightclub shooting showed last year, there is still much work to do to combat prejudice in all its forms.

Hackney has a proud history of being a place that welcomes everyone.

Which is why the Council has launched a programme of activities to celebrate the contribution of Hackney's Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual and Transgender plus (LGBT+) community.

Starting in February – which is national LGBT History Month – and continuing throughout the year, the Council will be creating, curating and promoting a series of community-led events designed to support equality, inclusion and cohesion. It is hoped that each year, the programme will grow and develop, celebrating the fact that, in Hackney, everyone can be 'out and included'.

Here's what's happening this February.

LGBT HISTORY MONTH RECEPTION

1 Feb, 5.45-7.45pm

Kicking off LGBT History Month, the Mayor of Hackney will host a celebratory reception at Hackney Museum, and the artist Stik will introduce a short film about the Hackney Pride banner project. The event's focus is on canvassing the community for ideas. What would people like to see in an annual programme of LGBT+ events, next year and beyond? Get involved, and the Council may be able to give support, ranging from PR to venue space. Hackney Museum, 1 Reading Lane, E8 1GQ.

To attend, e-mail: tara.hudson@hackney.gov.uk

HACKNEY MUSEUM

Throughout the year

Hackney Museum has launched a drive to develop its LGBT+ history collection. It's calling on residents to share personal records, photos, artefacts and recollections. Among the first items in the collection is the Mayor of Hackney's marriage certificate – the first same-sex wedding ceremony held in the borough – following an historic change in the law in 2014. As part of this exercise in crowd-sourced history, volunteers will be trained in the skills needed to record residents' oral histories. An LGBT+ history map is also being created online. Residents can add pins to it, highlighting places and times in which significant or personal LGBT+ history was made. Hackney Museum, 1 Reading Lane, E8 1GQ. ### HACKNEY LIBRARIES

Throughout February

All eight of Hackney's libraries will be hosting LGBT+ book suggestion stalls, highlighting LGBT+ authors and stories (see right hand list). Throughout the month, visitors will also be able to pick up leaflets from GALOP, an independent service helping anyone from the LGBT+ community who has experienced hate crime, sexual violence or domestic abuse. Health charity Positive East will also have a presence at Hackney's libraries, offering HIV tests and information about the virus. No appointment necessary, just drop into a session on the following days, and get the result in minutes:

YOUTH PARLIAMENT DEBATE

5.30-7pm, 27 Feb

Hackney's recently elected Youth Parliament members will hold a debate to discuss issues affecting young LGBT+ people in the borough. Recent research from the NSPCC showed that over half of LGBT+ young people have experienced homophobic bullying at school, and last December, ChildLine received an average of eight calls a day from children who wanted to talk about gender identity issues. The debate is open to anyone aged eight to 19, so join in the conversation. Young Hackney Forest Road Youth Hub, 29 Forest Rd, E8 3BY. Info: www.younghackney.org/hot-topic/lgbt/

YOUNG HACKNEY LGBT+ YOUTH GROUP

Weekly, from 1st week in Feb

The Council's youth service is launching a new LGBT+ youth group, which will discuss issues around history, culture, identity, sex and gender, sexual health, relationships and discrimination. There will also be time to socialise and make friends.

Apply by 22 Feb

Local charities and voluntary groups are invited to apply for tens of thousands of pounds in funding. At last year's Pride parade, Hackney was represented by a banner created by the internationally renowned street artist Stik. It will be auctioned at Christie's in April, with all the proceeds providing a grant for a Hackney-based project, delivered by a voluntary and community sector organisation, and designed to serve the local LGBTQ+ community. There's no predicting exactly how much will be raised, but another work by Stik recently reached £35,000 at auction. Info: www.hackney.gov.uk/community-grants

A Hackney LGBT+ reading list

'Mr Loverman' by Bernardine Evaristo

Winner of the Ferro-Grumley Award for LGBT Fiction, Bernardine Evaristo's novel centres on Barrington Jedidiah Walker, a 74-year-old man who leads a double life. Born and bred in Antigua, he's lived in Hackney for years. A flamboyant, wise-cracking character with a dapper taste in retro suits and a fondness for Shakespeare, Barrington is a husband, father, grandfather, and also, secretly, in a gay relationship with his childhood friend, Morris.

'Tipping The Velvet' by Sarah Waters

Former Stoke Newington resident Sarah Waters' award-winning novel 'Tipping the Velvet', is set in the music halls of the late 19th century. The story starts in a small Kentish town, where oyster girl Nan meets her heroine, Kitty, a male impersonator. The two begin a double act, move to London, and embark on a behind the scenes love affair.

AND FOR KIDS...

'And Tango Makes Three' by Justin Richardson and Peter Parnell

In the zoo there are all kinds of animal families. But Tango's family is not like any of the others. This illustrated children's book, aimed at four to six-year-olds, fictionalises the true story of two male penguins who became partners and raised a chick in New York's Central Park Zoo.

There was a great turnout for the Council's annual Winter Warmer event, at Stoke Newington Town Hall, where almost 500 residents were given advice on staying fit and healthy during the chilly winter months

Winter warmer heats up

As temperatures outside dropped, Hackney's over-55s enjoyed a fun day inside

TEMPERATURES may have dipped below freezing, but that didn't stop almost 500 residents turning out for the Council's annual Winter Warmer at Stoke Newington Town Hall.

The popular free event, on 26 January, is organised specifically for the borough's over-55s.

The showcase provides residents with valuable advice on staying fit and healthy, as well as “I am really enjoying today, it brings older people together to socialise, and you can also find out what's going on” how to save energy during the winter months.

Patricia Sim, from Stoke

Newington, said: “I am really enjoying today, it brings older people together to socialise.

You can also find out what's going on all around Hackney.”

As well as complimentary hot soup and a sandwich, residents could pick up advice and goodies from more than 30 vendors.

One of the most popular stalls was run by the Council's Parks team, who were giving out free pots of herbs for residents, as well as providing advice on gardening.

Visitors were also able to pick up recipe cards and a bag of fruit and veg provided by Tesco.

Owen Duckett (pictured left), was keen to collect a thyme plant.

He said: “It is great to be able to grow your own thyme. I'm looking forward to using it in my cooking.”

Staff from a wellbeing hub drew queues of residents keen to unwind with a professional hand, foot and shoulder massage.

There were also lots of fun and games to be had with bingo and prize raffles, in which one lucky resident won a free pair of spectacles.

Alongside local charity and voluntary organisations, residents also had the chance to speak directly to staff from across the Council, including the housing, public health and community safety teams.

Cllr Claydon McKenzie, Cabinet Member for Housing Services, said: “This year's Winter Warmer was a bumper success, everyone who attended not only came away with useful advice, but also got to mingle with their neighbours and meet new people.

“It was great to be able to talk to residents and get lots of positive feedback about the day.”

Consultation on the Britannia Leisure Centre site

The Council is considering whether it would be possible to build a new leisure centre to replace Britannia – which is coming to the end of its life – and a new secondary school to help meet the demand for school places for local children. This would be funded in part by the sale of housing.

We are looking at the Britannia site, in Hyde Road and bordering Pitfield Street, because it is a large site in Council-ownership, and we believe that, in consultation with residents, we could make better use of the land and provide the first class community facilities we need.

About the proposed Britannia site development

The aims of the multi-use development proposal are to:

- Build a new leisure centre to replace facilities which are reaching the end of their life
- Build a new secondary school with six forms of entry and a sixth form
- Retain Shoreditch Park Primary School (formerly Whitmore Primary School) as part of the Britannia site and fund some improvement works to the school
- Build affordable and private sale housing. The private housing is to contribute to the cost of the leisure centre, secondary school and improvements to Shoreditch Park Primary School.

By Harriet Worsley

WHAT I've learnt is that I have to make my own noise," says Emeka Egbuonu. He is in the midst of planning his book launch at the Hackney Empire and, he readily admits, is feeling the pressure.

"I mean, the amount of self doubt you have to deal with," he continues. Adding: "There are all these questions crowding into your head, are people going to turn up, and all that? But I don't have the powerful engine of a major publishing house behind me. So I have to make a lot of noise to get heard. And you know what? It's 2017. There's Twitter, YouTube, and everything else. I can make it happen."

Emeka has form when it comes to making things happen. Born in Nigeria, he came to Hackney as a seven-year-old.

He laughs: "I was shocked by the cold, but adjusted pretty quickly to the culture."

As a kid he showed serious footballing talent until, suddenly, an injury destroyed his hopes of going professional. Instead, aged 18, he took up an offer to coach a local under-15s club.

He says: "It turned out to be a very powerful time for me. I used the football as a tool to get these kids together, bridge the rivalries and hostilities between them, and give them a sense of responsibility."

Since then, he has built a career in what he describes as 'youth empowerment'. He has written three books on the subject, made two documentaries and spoken in front of audiences around the world.

Where does his determination come from? "I guess it's about my Dad. He had no opportunities. No schooling past the primary level. His parents died when he was really young. But he built his own little empire. He made himself a success story through determination. It's all about the mindset you bring to things," he says.

After finishing university in 2008, Emeka came back to Hackney and started volunteering at The Crib, the local youth club where he himself had spent time as a kid.

"I was mentoring young people and trying to break down the negative cycles of gang culture and youth violence that stop these kids from meeting their potential," he says.

One of the exercises he used involved setting them a project. He explains: "We looked at gang capitals around the world, analysing what made them that way, and I thought: wouldn't it be great to get the funding to take these kids there?"

With little more than determination at his disposal, he both managed it and then filmed the resulting cultural exchange, turning it into his first documentary 'London to LA'.

"The whole experience was a huge learning curve for all of us who went, the young people and me too," he laughs. Adding: "But it was amazing. We went into prisons, we met with the district attorney and the biggest projects tackling gang violence... It changed our views of the world and of ourselves."

Then in 2011, his first book was released. Called 'Consequences: Breaking The Negative Cycle', it was based on his experiences working at The Crib. He says: "One of its themes was the helplessness among young people. It came out three weeks after the riots in 2011 and, suddenly, the whole world could see it clearly too."

The book received a whirlwind of attention. The

"The whole experience was a huge learning curve for all of us... it changed our views of the world and of ourselves"

Guardian, for example, commented that it 'had much to teach policymakers following the riots'.

"Suddenly I was being invited to speak at universities and major venues," says Emeka. Adding: "I was looking out at audiences of 400, instead of a few people at the youth centre. But I did it and I enjoyed it."

And so his CV expanded to include public speaking alongside youth work, film-making and writing.

In 2013, however, it changed again, when he accepted a position as a lecturer at Barking and Dagenham College.

Last year, it evolved once more, when he took a break to focus on public speaking and writing the book that he will launch this month.

'My Sister's Pain' is a tale of two sisters and the 'lemons life throws at them'. He says: "My skills are with the young people who are on the edge.

There are people who are fantastic at teaching a room full of well-behaved students. My skills are in reaching the ones that others think are unteachable.

"It's hard to quantify the effect of breaking down some of those barriers between them and success. You can't measure it in the same way you can with exam results. But for me, it's what matters most."

So instead of throwing them in the bin, use our textile banks.

We even want things that can't be reused like worn out socks, tatty clothes and old bed sheets. 70 % of items are sold to raise money for good causes. Everything else is shredded and turned into new items like cloths and blankets.

There are over 100 banks across Hackney.

THE first batch of Hackney Recycling Rewards winners have been announced, with £100 given to 44 winners and £40 to 103 runners-up.

They are the first winners of quarterly prizes handed out to residents who recycle the most in their area.

Over 16,000 residents have already signed up to the scheme since it launched last October.

The Council measures the amount of rubbish and recycling produced by each of the borough's 21 wards. When a ward recycles more and wastes less, all of its members earn points.

Every three months, 147 vouchers are given out to those members who have earned the most points.

Richard Page, who lives in De Beauvoir ward and “Even my three-year-old daughter asks which bin she needs to put things in”

won £100, said: “It was a great pleasure to hear that I’d won a voucher as I take great pride in recycling. My motto is ‘recycle, reuse’, and this incentive to encourage recycling is a great idea.”

Heni Warwick, in Victoria ward, who also won £100, said: “I’m so glad to be a part of Hackney Recycling Rewards, not only have I won a voucher, but it also feels like I have been able to make a real difference. It’s definitely something that anyone can get involved in and I’d encourage everyone to do just that.”

Homerton resident Nilay Ozgur, who won a £100 voucher, said: “I feel so lucky to have won a voucher, but we do try to do as much as we can.

“I like to get the whole family involved in recycling, even my three-year-old daughter asks which bin she needs to put things in!”

All households can participate in the recycling rewards scheme, residents just have to activate their free accounts to get started. Members can also vote and win money for local charities, as well as using a membership card or app for offers and discounts in over 100 local shops.

Cllr Feryal Demirci, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, Transport and Parks, said: “Congratulations to the winners. I hope they encourage their friends and neighbours to sign up, as we are keen to reward residents to get an increase in recycling.

“We need to spend less money on the disposing of rubbish so we can continue to pay for other important services like cleaning streets and maintaining parks.”

News in brief

Spring clean your local area

RESIDENTS fed up with rubbish and flytipping in a local park, street or estate, can do something about it. From 3 to 6 March, thousands of people will join in the Great British Spring Clean. Last year, 250,000 people across the country took part in clean-up events. CleanupUK's Beautiful Boroughs Project organises regular community litter picks and has helped set up over 100 groups around London. Participants benefit not just from a cleaner and safer environment, but also from getting to know their neighbours.

Sarah Hayes, Project Co-ordinator at CleanupUK, said: “The Great British Spring Clean is a fantastic opportunity to get your clean-up group off to a flying start. We hope lots of Hackney locals will join in and help make a real difference to the area.”

New £1m funding announced to help Shoreditch streets go electric

HACKNEY is set to benefit from over £1million from the Mayor of London and Transport for London, which is funding six innovative ‘neighbourhoods of the future’.

The project will combine innovative green technology and other initiatives to tackle London’s air quality emergency directly at a local level. Hackney will use the funding to create ‘electric streets’, with a concentration of charging points and electric vehicle-only parking and loading points in the City Fringe Low Emissions Neighbourhood, which covers Hackney, Tower Hamlets and Islington.

Cllr Feryal Demirci,

Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, Transport and Parks, said: “We’ll only reduce pollution if boroughs work together, so we’re delighted to receive funding to build on our work with Islington and Tower Hamlets to improve air quality around Shoreditch and the City Fringe.”

The aim of the scheme is to give Londoners the confidence to make the switch to more environmentally-friendly vehicles, to work with businesses to bring new technology to market faster, and to test technology that reduces pollution and could be used elsewhere in the capital and across the UK.

London Remixed Festival

3-4 February, Rich Mix, 35-47 Bethnal Green Rd, E1 6LA

LOVE festivals, but hate mud? Then rejoice... the London Remixed Festival is back, bringing you some of the best new musical talent without the camping and dodgy Portaloos.

This year's line-up includes 25 cutting-edge bands and DJs across four stages and two days, all from the relative safety of Shoreditch.

The festival's global sounds reach from Latin grooves to Balkan beats. Super-group AFRIQUOUI will be blending traditional African music with electronic sound on Saturday night. Others to watch out for include Scottish band The Elephant Sessions, and DJs Olly Wood and Chris Pedley showcasing their 'Beating Heart' project. So get your dancing shoes on (wellies not necessary).

ART &
EXHIBITIONS*BIRD, DEMON, BIRD,
DEMON, BIRD, DEMON*Until 19 Feb, Wed-Sun, 6-11pm

Guerrilla street artist, Nathan Bowen, and painter Steve McCracken work side by side in the streets of London mixing styles, exchanging ideas and making art which reflects their environment. This exhibition will showcase their most recent work featuring colourful birds and cheeky demons. All artwork will be available for sale. Free. Haunt, 182 Stoke Newington Road, N16 7UY. Info: 020 7249 1203; www.hauntlondon.com/event/exhibition-launch-nathan-bowen-steve-mccracken-street-art/

opening times

South African artist and Stoke Newington resident, Jacques Viljoen, presents a solo exhibition exploring the theme of estrangement through a series of paintings on found objects. Images on soft cover books tell the story of a fictional character, recounting their experience. This includes memories of distant childhood friends, strange new cities, and new and old lovers. Free. ### People Never Notice Anything

6-9pm, 12-26 January, Guest Projects Gallery, 1 Andrews Rd, E8 4QL

ART world giants, including Jake and Dinos Chapman, are part of a new exhibition that aims to explore mental health. 'People never notice anything' is the first major show from an ongoing art project called Broken Grey Wires. Run by a steering board of big names, including Turner Prize-winning Yinka Shonibare, it works with critically acclaimed artists, major institutions and communities to dismantle the stigma around mental illness. Here, at Shonibare's Guest Projects space, cartoons by David Shringley sit alongside dystopian etchings from the Chapmans and diary drawings by Bobby Baker. Big names tackling even bigger questions mean this exhibition is bound to be noticed, despite its name.

PREVIEW*Madhouse, My House?*2 Feb-13 May, Hackney Museum, 1 Reading Lane, E8 1GQ

AS recently as the 1970s, people with learning disabilities were forcibly placed in hospitals for 'idiots', 'imbeciles' and 'the feeble minded'.

A new exhibition at Hackney Museum explores this deplorable life through the eyes of two real, historical patients. Harvey Waterman and Mabel Cooper were residents of St Lawrence's hospital, in Surrey, until the Mental Deficiency Act was repealed in 1959. 'Madhouse, My House?' pieces together their experiences through interactive displays made all the more moving because they were researched and created by Access All Areas, a Hackney-based theatre company which works with people with learning disabilities.

Terry, for example, remarks: "Mabel's birth certificate gives her the label 'imbecile'... I've been given lots of labels because of my condition."

The exhibition challenges you to leave without having a few serious thoughts provoked. Entrance is free.

TV presenter Liz Bonnin (above centre) conducted an experiment with Daubeney Primary School pupils

Young scientists on TV

LOCAL primary school children were chosen to help launch a new nationwide education programme, conducting science experiments for an audience of politicians and news crews.

With research suggesting that fewer than 15 per cent of 10 to 14-year-olds want to become a scientist, the BBC has launched a campaign to get a million children engaged in science.

Leading universities have created a series of child-friendly science experiments for the campaign, called Terrific Scientific. Designed for Year 5 and Year 6 pupils, they will be delivered through a new website where the experiments can be found alongside live lessons, interactive games and videos.

Nine Year 6 pupils from Daubeney Primary School were chosen to launch the programme at the Wellcome Trust, a leading science institute in Euston.

“It was probably the most important opportunity of my life,” said pupil Isaac about conducting the experiments in front of a live audience of industry movers and shakers, press and MPs.

The students had a second moment in the limelight, when the Terrific Scientific bus pulled up in their E5 playground to film a feature for BBC Breakfast news.

TV presenter Liz Bonnin helped the children to explore non-Newtonian fluids through an experiment that involved saving a dinosaur from quicksand.

Another pupil, Nancy, said: “I definitely think that more children, especially girls, should get involved in science. It opens up a world of opportunities.”

Celebrating model citizens

OVER the past decade, 20,000 children from across Hackney have learnt how to become model citizens. Transport for London's (TfL) Safety and Citizenship team has teamed up with Hackney Museum and other partners to annually provide a range of practical workshops, for up to 2,500 children from 58 Hackney schools, to teach youngsters a range of practical skills.

Activities are brought to life with models and backdrops, and amongst other things, youngsters learn about getting on and off a Tube train, crossing the road safely, simple first aid, dealing with dogs, using Oyster cards, and what to do and who to contact in case of an emergency.

Masnoon, from Hoxton Garden Primary School, said:

“My favourite part of the afternoon was pretending we were getting on the bus! It's something that I will be doing when I start secondary school in September. I never thought that saying thank you to the bus driver and smiling at him would make their day brighter.”

Urswick memorial for First World War soldier

A BRAVE Hackney soldier has been honoured for his service, 101 years after the event.

Staff and students at The Urswick School held an event to unveil a memorial bench within the school's grounds, in dedication to a former teacher who enlisted as a soldier during the First World War.

Ernest Davis' links to the school and his death on the battlefield in 1916 were only recently discovered.

A minute book belonging to the school's trustees was found to include a letter, written by Mr Davis' mother to the headteacher of the time, explaining that her son had 'died from wounds received in France'.

Year 9 students, studying the conflict, were so moved by Mr Davis' story that they decided to honour his memory with a bench and plaque bearing the words: 'Earnest Davis: 681 40 Gunner, of the Royal Garrison Artillery who died on the 20th April 1916, aged 30'.

At the unveiling, Calampo Gomes and Clinton Shoyemi, two sixth form students, were dressed as First World War soldiers. They greeted a Chelsea Pensioner, Mick Kippin, who talked to the students about his own past military service.

The Rector of Hackney, Reverend Al Gordon, blessed the bench and there was a two-minute silence while the school's brass instrumentalists played The Last Post.

Stuart Bennett, Assistant Headteacher, said: “It can be hard to comprehend how much the world has changed since 1914.

“My hope now is the students will pass on the message of what the bench means – how important it is to work together as a community, how vital it is to share our history, and how we should respect the people who came before us, and remember them.”

A young person learns new skills from an industry professional at a Big Music Project workshop

Think big, aim high

YOUNG people in Hackney can gain an understanding of careers in the music industry, thanks to an innovative artist development scheme.

The Council's youth service is working with the Big Music Project on a month-long training programme that will give young people the space to develop their talents, gain insight into the music industry and improve their career prospects.

“Gain insight into the music industry and improve your career prospects”

Budding musicians will be able to take advantage of free rehearsal space, practical advice, and the opportunity to come together as a band.

The project also gives young people a chance to meet a wide range of industry professionals. Young people will be shown the wide range of possibilities that the music industry has to offer, from marketing to music journalism.

Regular workshops will take place at The Edge Youth Hub, Woodberry Grove, N4, throughout February, including one on DJ skills with one of London's top names, DJ Anne Frankenstein.

The project is open to young people, aged 14 to 19. It will culminate with a showcase of music and spoken word at Hackney Picturehouse, E8, on 25 February. Tickets are free and will be released via: www.younghackney.org

Residents discuss health and social care plans at a public engagement event at St Joseph's Hospice, E8

Health 'devo' events

OVER 150 people took part in recent public engagement events about plans to further integrate health and social care services in the borough.

The Hackney health and social care devolution pilot will test new local care models to meet residents' needs more efficiently.

The pilot is a partnership between 10 local health and social care organisations, including the Council, Homerton hospital, City and Hackney Clinical Commissioning Group (CCG) and Healthwatch Hackney.

The partners are focused on integrating health and social care to make

“The devolution pilot is a great opportunity for residents to be involved in the most of the resources available in Hackney – including pooling budgets – to ensure residents have the best chance of healthy and happy lives.

Residents who attended four engagement meetings – in November and December last year – heard how patients will be at the centre of the new model. Services will be joined up and organised around people, rather than expecting people to fit around organisations.

The pilot plans to divide Hackney into four geographical areas, or 'quadrants'. People identified as 'high risk' or having complex health needs would be referred for additional support to a dedicated team in each quadrant. The team – made up of community, clinical and social care workers – will work together to develop a joint care plan for the person.

Patients, carers and health and social care professionals had the opportunity to question senior managers from the pilot organisations at the meetings. Most participants were broadly positive about the principles behind the model and felt it could address the issue of different service providers not speaking to one another as much as they could.

Residents raised a number of practical concerns, including the need for adequate funding, and the importance of ensuring residents do not lose access to health services when they need them.

Participants also highlighted the need to always involve people in decisions about their care.

Healthwatch Hackney Director, Jon Williams, said: “The pilot is a great opportunity for residents to be involved in shaping the future of Hackney's health and care services.

“The pilot partners are committed to treating residents and service users as equal partners, and we will continue to make sure they are involved at every stage.”

Cycle chauffeuring service

A NEW mode of transport is set to provide a fun and environmentally-friendly means of getting around for older or less able residents.

Ride Side-by-Side uses modified bicycles driven by a 'pilot', to enable residents to make short trips – on quiet roads – to appointments, the shops or social visits.

Two types of cycle will be used, one a rickshaw-style bike (below), with a seat in front, and the other allowing people to cycle together with the pilot.

The pilots are fully qualified transport cyclists who are first aid trained and have experience of working with people with mobility issues or dementia.

Kathy Spanos, who tried a trial rickshaw trip at an event held for potential users of the service, said: “I feel like the queen! This is lovely, such a great idea and a fantastic way to travel. I would definitely use this service.”

New chief for top HIV charity

A LEADING Hackney councillor has been appointed as Chair of the UK's top HIV charity.

Jonathan McShane will remain the Council Cabinet Member for Health, Social Care and Devolution in Hackney, as well as Chair of the borough's Health and Wellbeing Board.

Of his new role as Chair of Trustees at the Terrence Higgins Trust, he said: “It's a real privilege to become Chair of an organisation I have known and admired for many years.

“We know there are huge challenges, but also real opportunities ahead of us in HIV and sexual health. I look forward to working with staff and volunteers to ensure that Terrence Higgins Trust continues to play its vital role as the UK's leading HIV and sexual health charity.”

Recipes straight from the ovens at Waterhouse

www.waterhouserestaurant.co.uk

THIS is the latest in a series of regular recipes courtesy of Waterhouse – a social enterprise restaurant alongside the Regent's Canal in Shoreditch.

Salmon fishcakes

Makes 20 (serves 10)

Preparation time
45 mins

Cooking time
10 mins

Ingredients

- 200g salmon
- 150g mashed potatoes
- 20g dill
- 10g mint
- 50g cream cheese
- 4 eggs (beaten)
- 100g flour
- 5g cayenne pepper
- 200g breadcrumbs.

Method

- Preheat the oven to 180°C
- Peel the potatoes and cut into equal-sized chunks. Boil the potatoes in a pan of salted water. Finely chop the herbs
- Season the fish and cook in the oven for 4-5 minutes. The fish should be cooked all the way through, so that it is flaky and breaks up quite easily
- Once the potatoes are soft enough, mash them thoroughly and flake in the fish. Add the herbs, pepper and cream cheese, and mix to get a fluffy yet firm consistency

- Mould the mixture into fishcakes and place in the fridge. This will help them to firm up so they keep their shape during cooking
- Place the flour, eggs and breadcrumbs into three bowls, ready to coat the fishcakes
- Remove the fishcakes from the fridge and lightly coat in the flour. This will allow the egg to stick (however, too much flour will cause the egg to fall away). Dip into the egg and finally coat in breadcrumbs. If necessary, repeat this process to ensure the fishcake won't break up during cooking
- Fry the fishcakes in a deep-fat fryer for 2 minutes (or on a low heat in a flat pan with a little oil or butter for 3 minutes), so the outer layer is golden. Then place on a baking tray in the oven for a further 2-5 minutes to ensure they are cooked all the way through
- Serve with salad and enjoy.

There's still time to have your say on Telecare plans

RESIDENTS are being asked for their views on proposals to start charging some users for the Telecare service.

It supports older or vulnerable people to live independently by triggering an alert – via a pull cord or pendant – in the case of an emergency. Some equipment can generate automatic alerts in the event of particular issues, such as a flood or gas leak. The alerts go through to the Telecare response service, which can either notify friends or family, or send out a response team.

Hackney is one of only two London councils to currently offer the service free to all users, but continuing Government cuts mean the Council is considering introducing charges to contribute to the cost of the Telecare service.

The proposed charges range from £2 per week, for those who receive Pension Credit, to £5.50 per week. Residents who receive a package of care from the Council would be excluded from the charges.

A consultation questionnaire has been posted to all Telecare users. Residents can have their say by completing an online questionnaire at: www.hackney.gov.uk/telecare; or attending a public meeting on 16 February, from 4pm to 5.30pm, at Clapton Library, Northwold Road, E5. The consultation closes on 26 February.

To request a paper copy of the consultation, or if you have access issues in relation to the meeting, call: 020 8356 5110.

The Mayor and councillors

Councillors are elected by residents and serve for four years. The last borough-wide elections took place in May 2014.

Councillors have a range of responsibilities, including helping to oversee Council services.

They hold advice surgeries where residents can meet their local representative and ask them to take up issues of concern. Generally they can help with Council related matters, but if the issue is the responsibility of another person or organisation, councillors can often point people in the right direction and tell residents who they need to see.

Hackney has 57 councillors representing areas called wards – see map below.

MAYOR PHILIP GLANVILLE

Hackney's executive Mayor Philip Glanville, was directly elected by the borough in September 2016. He is the political leader of the Council, overseeing the budget and all Council services. The Mayor holds monthly casework surgeries in the Town Hall. To book an appointment, email: mayor@hackney.gov.uk; or call: 020 8356 3269. Residents are first encouraged to contact their ward councillor. Civic and ceremonial duties are undertaken by the Speaker of Hackney who is chosen annually from the borough's 57 councillors. The current Speaker is Cllr Rosemary Sales.
